Types of Financial Aid

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) can be filed starting October 1 - available at: www.fafsa.gov. Make sure you complete it before the March 2 priority filing deadline. Based on your FAFSA and other information you submit, the Financial Aid Office will determine your eligibility for a variety of funding options, including scholarships, grants, work-study programs and loans. Undocumented students with AB 540 status qualify for many forms of financial aid, including exemption from nonresident tuition and can apply for aid via the CA Dream Act application. International students are not eligible for university, state, or federal financial aid. We urge international students to research scholarship opportunities from private organizations both within the US and your home country.

The UCLA Scholarship Resource Center is available to help you identify scholarships for which you are qualified. Other resources including community service organizations in your hometown, faith-based groups and your college career/college counseling center are options to explore. For information about searching for UCLA scholarships and other outside scholarships, please review our Scholarship Resource Center website at: www.scholarshipcenter.ucla.edu

Also available to California residents are the UC Blue and Gold Opportunity Plan and the Middle Class Scholarship Program (MCSP). These both qualify as grants, which are rewards. These both qualify as grants, and the recipient does not have to repay. These are mostly awarded based on need and require submission of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) or the California Dream Act application by March 2nd.

As of Fall 2022, UC’s Native American Opportunity Plan ensures system-wide Tuition and Fee waivers for recognized Native American, American Indian, and Alaska Native tribes. There is no separate application and if you qualify, UCs will contact you directly with further instructions.

UCLA has a long tradition of academic and research excellence, so it’s no surprise that academics are an important part of our transfer admission and selection criteria. We encourage you to meet with your counselor for individual advising and to review our Transfer Admission Guide (www.admission.ucla.edu/tag) for specific requirements. At a minimum, you must satisfy the following four requirements:

1. Complete 60 semester or 90 quarter units of UC-transferable college credit (junior-level standing)
2. Complete the UC 7-course pattern (2 English composition, 1 math, 4 electives). Students are encouraged to take required English and math courses as early as possible. One transferable math course that has a prerequisite of intermediate algebra or higher
3. Complete a significant amount of lower-division major preparation for your intended major
4. Maintain a GPA of at least 3.2 in all transferable courses. Note that applicants for highly selective majors should present a strong GPA

For California Community College Students, ASSIST (www.assist.org) provides detailed information on transferable courses, major prep requirements, and course articulation.

OTHER FACTORS

In addition to required academic preparation, UCLA also evaluates all non-academic and out-of-classroom achievements, including, but not limited to:

- employment
- family responsibilities
- military service
- honors & awards
- extracurricular activities
- volunteer work
- the student’s experiences
